Bob Pitzel: Capturing The Vanishing Prairie in Watercolor

Recently I had my website redesigned to better reflect the nature and feel of my most recent work. The intention was to have my most current works represented larger, on the home page. As the site progressed a number of the selected works slated for the home page sold, so newer work had to be chosen. Normally this perpetual cycle is not a bad thing, but keeping the site up to date is a challenge.

I always believed in 'show me something I would like to buy, not what was just sold before my eye'.

Many of my newer pieces have just been posted, so I would like to take this opportunity to present these works online to my friends and business colleagues. Many of you have shown an interest in the artist side of my life for a number of years. Painting is a passion that continues to grow and since being semi-retired, I have been taking count of the disappearing scenes that put Saskatchewan on the map and imbedded memories in many people, who have roots in this province.

Personal Invitation: The Vanishing Prairie

I hope you will take a moment to experience The Vanishing Prairie with me. View these works on my website at your convenience.

Your response to this recent body of work is much appreciated and I will reply to your email as quickly as I can.

Kind regards,

Bob Pitzel

The image above, Barn Patterns 3 (detail), was recently completed this spring.
